

Equations

The equation number should appear in parentheses, aligned with the right-hand margin, and should be coded to the chapter in which it appears.

$$y = mx + b \quad (1-1)$$

When you cite the equation in the text, do not parenthesize the number, and always put the capitalized word Equation before the number when citing [e.g., Equation 1-1 NOT Equation (1-1) or (1-1)].

It is acceptable to use the abbreviation Eq. in place of the word Equation [as long as you always use the abbreviation consistently; however, if it is the first word of a sentence, you must spell the word out in full].
